REGULARITY IN TRAIN MOVEMENTS To the business man the essence of a journey is time; to every traveler regularity of train movement is more than a satisfaction.

The traveler, in the selection of his route, looks for the most modern equipment, the most securely protected line, and a time table of the most accommodating hours of departure and arrival. In this discriminating day these features are essential. If he also finds that a reputation for reliability and regularity of movement is maintained, the selection of his route is fixed.

The through trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad are made up of the newest and best appointed equipment that car-architects can design and mechanical skill construct.

The Limited trains carry drawing-room sleeping cars, dining cars, smoking cars, compartment cars, observation and library cars. They offer everything to promote the comfort or satisfy the convenience of every class of travelers, including reading matter, stocks and market reports, stenographic service free, maids for the ladies and children, and barbers and bathrooms for the men. No feasible accessory of the modern

These trains are drawn over a roadbed of recognized superiority by the strongest and fleetest of modern locomotives, protected by a signal system of proven fidelity, and their reliability is as nearly normal as unflagging vigilance can

The phenomenal record of the "Pennsylvania Special" (the 18-hour train between New York and Chicago), and the "New York and St. Louis Limited" is shared by the other high-grade Western trains, and it is a significant factor in making the Pennsylvania the Standard Railroad of America.
